

FLA's PTMB 2023

Flaviosa

let the magic begin

Hi, welcome to our beloved faculty!

Participants will participate in the Faculty Student Orientation Program (PTMB / Pembekalan Terpadu Mahasiswa Baru) for two days. Here, participants will learn about the joyful learning in FLA and have fun together as FLAmily!

Faculty of Language and Arts is a top-notch faculty in terms of quality. We excel in English language skills, critical thinking, togetherness, and integrity. Therefore, we will produce individuals who are Adaptive and Innovative, InnoFLAtive mindset, and Joyful learning

Let's all cherish the moment of PTMB, and be prepared to socialize to be the better version of ourselves in life.

Cheers.

GROUP ASSIGNMENT

Theme: Adaptive and Innovative, InnoFLActive mindset, Joyful learning

1. Choose 1 inspirational figure reflecting the values of Adaptive and Innovative, InnoFLActive mindset, and Joyful learning
2. Describe briefly the figure you choose.
3. Mention the values of the inspirational figure according to the PTMB theme that can inspire you from the figure you have chosen
4. Collect the values you get from the inspirational figure.
5. Each group must bring scissors, color marker/coloring, glue, origami, post-it, and any other necessary decorations.

Example:

Dr. Jane Goodall is a renowned British primatologist, ethologist, and anthropologist, best known for her groundbreaking research on chimpanzees in Gombe Stream National Park, Tanzania. She revolutionized the understanding of primates and our relationship with the natural world.

Adaptive and Innovative: Throughout her decades-long research, Dr. Goodall immersed herself in their habitat, patiently gaining their trust and learning their behaviors through observation. Her ability to adapt to the complexities of the environment and the chimpanzees' social structure enabled her to make groundbreaking discoveries.

InnoFLAative Mindset: Dr. Goodall's approach to research was innovative and groundbreaking. She defied traditional scientific norms by giving the chimpanzees names instead of numbers, which humanized them and changed the way researchers interacted with their subjects. Her observations of chimpanzee tool usage and complex social behaviors challenged the prevailing scientific beliefs at the time and opened up new avenues for understanding the animal kingdom.

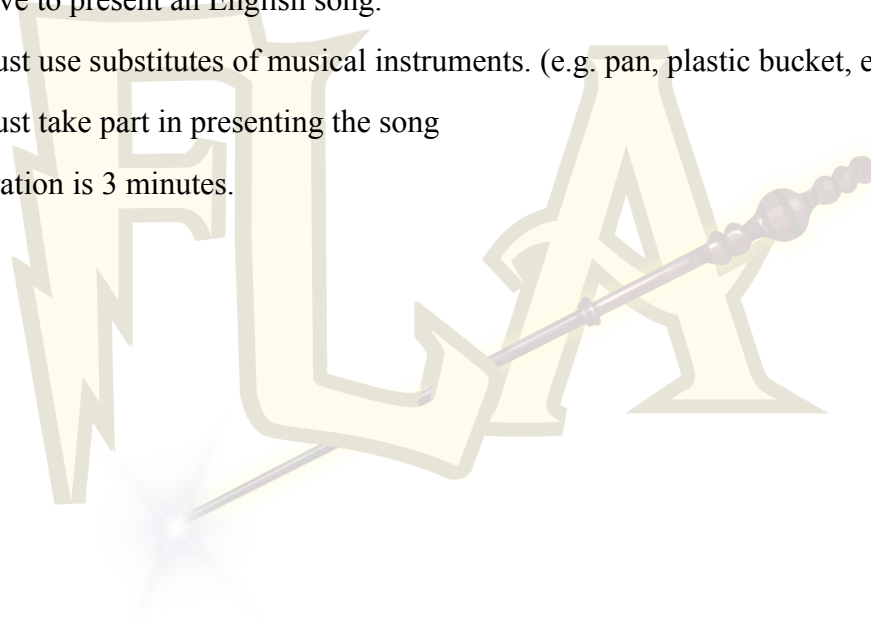

Joyful Learning: Dr. Goodall's passion for learning and exploring the natural world has been evident throughout her life. She found immense joy in her research and interactions with chimpanzees, and her enthusiasm for understanding the complexities of their behavior was contagious. Her love for learning extended beyond her scientific work, inspiring others to care deeply about the environment and wildlife conservation.

Conclusion:

Dr. Jane Goodall's tireless dedication to her work, her ability to adapt to new situations, her innovative research methods, and her joyful approach to learning have made her an inspirational figure not only in the field of primatology but also in promoting environmental conservation and advocating for the protection of our planet's biodiversity.
